Observations . . .

Do We Know Why We Fight?

Although so far America has taken this strange war with admirable calmness, yet we cannot ignore either the subtle or blatant propaganda already at work to get us into it.

Let us remember that in the last war we did not know for what we fought. One way of saying this is that we did not get what we were told and thought we were fighting for: a world safe for democracy; a just peace; a universal sheathing of the sword; an ending of war. Instead we got a substitution of dictatorship for democracy, a Versailles treaty of which even Lloyd George said while it was in the making that it held the certain seeds of another war within at least thirty years. Surely we did not know for what we fought.

Have we any better assurance that we would know again? What confidence can we have that, after another few years of slaughter, the governments of the world would or could make a better so-called peace than they made before, when, as William E. Barton remarked, "Woodrow Wilson went down from Jerusalem to Versailles, and fell among thieves."

You cannot fit war as an institution into the mind of Christ at all. Deeper than its futility lies its iniquity. Why do we so sedulously avoid telling the real truth about war, about armaments? We say that our battleships, our airplanes, our gases and bayonets are for the glorious defense of the Republic. Why do we not say that our navy is the means of blasting innocent hundreds of our brothers into the depths of the sea? Our airplanes are the means of dropping destruction on the defenseless? Our gases are the means of making men cough their lungs out? Our bayonets the means of skewing abdomens till their entrails run in the dirt? Why do we not re-write the Battle Hymn of the Republic more honestly? Julia Ward Howe said of Christ, "As he died to make men holy, let us die to make men free." Let us try to sing it this way, "As he died to make men holy, Let us kill to make men free." Can you do it? I cannot.—From The Oberlin Alumni Magazine.

Out of The Mail Bag

More and more, the alumni office is receiving word direct from the alumni. Especially if you are at some distance from here, or are in a new environment or in work which would be of general interest to other alumni, we invite you—beg you—to jot down a few lines to give us an account of what you are doing or a picture of your "new world."

Mrs. Rayno A. Johnson (Dorothy Nadeau, '34), with her husband and small son, Michael (two years old next July), is situated at Elim, Alaska, where both she and her husband are engaged in work for the United States government. Dorothy is teaching in a government school, and her latest activity there is the establishing of a small paper—articles contributed by her students—called the "Elim Examiner." Her letters read like a book of adventure—here's a sample:

November 23, 1939.

Our nearest post office is Golovin—26 miles away. A plane from Nome to Fairbanks gets mail there on Mondays and Fridays. Our people here go to Golovin twice or three times a month, by dog team, & that's how we finally get mail.

This is a very beautiful station; great mountains to the north, the sea to the south and a spruce forest all around. The forest is a freak of nature—there are by ordinary, no trees north of Seward, until one comes to the Yukon.

Our people are full-blooded Eskimos. They live in log houses of one or two rooms, travel with dogs, and wear fur parkas & mukluks (& so do we! You should see our petit young Michael in Eskimo clothes!) The weather so far has varied between -4° to -31° , which last was cold enough, you know. Yesterday, at -10° I went with some women to fish tom-cod through the 3-foot ice on the sea. We walked out about a quarter of a mile, broke holes about a foot across with a sharp spear (like a pike-pole) and fished with bone hooks strung on thongs and tied to a grooved stick (can't hold the thong with mittens because the dampness would freeze your hands). In fifteen minutes I caught eight fish, which was all we needed—& besides, my cheeks were beginning to freeze, so I came back.

We have a native girl as housekeeper. She surely knows how to see through Michael, & she's so clean & industrious & learns cooking very quickly.

And how do you suppose I put in my spare time? Learning Eskimo! And it's a stiff proposition. Stefanson was right. However, it seems worth it, because Elim is the last stronghold of the old pure tongue. There are six old people here who are greatly revered on that account—so I study furiously! The missionary at Solomon acquired the written alphabet from St. Lawrence Island and sent it on to me—so we all work together. He will be here in March so I'll get some help. . . .

Right now I have a measles epidemic on my hands—20 cases in bed, so if you'll pardon me—

Sincerely,

Dorothy Nadeau Johnson.

Martha Ann Wilson, '29, writes from Shimonoseki, Japan, where she is studying the Japanese language and teaching at "Baiko Jo Gakuin", a five-year high school for girls:

Baiko Jo Gakuin,

Shimonoseki, Japan

November 28, 1939

Christmas Greetings to you from Shimonoseki! Poinsetta plants blooming on the sunporch (one over five feet high), carols being enthusiastically practiced by the girls, special programs getting under way—and soon Christmas will be here. Come up the hill with me and let me show you my new home. At the top stands Baiko, commanding a wonderful view of the terraced hillsides below and of the Straits beyond which lead into the famed Inland Sea. From my windows you can see the almost unbelievable number of sailboats, fishing sampans, ocean liners that come in here or go by daily. Ferries take you in twenty minutes to Moji, and up behind that town rise the loveliest mountains this side of home. We three "foreigners" who teach English live in a house at one end of the school grounds. We have a fine cook who has served in that capacity over twenty years, so we don't have to depend on rice and raw fish. Our meals are simple and getting more so with advancing prices and scarcity of items, but we are still well fed and happy. "Sukiyaki" is an occasional treat and change—Japan's chop suey.

... I have the third year girls in class and club, and this gives me my beginning contact with these people. They are so eager to learn that I find them a stimulating group. My hours at school must be short because my biggest assignment this year is the language. You know its reputation! But it has many charms, and since it is the key to any success with the people, I dig in. But it has its hilarious moments as well. My worst faux pas so far has been to ask the maid to sit on the plate with the fish, instead of fill it with food! And she asked me if my striped summer dress was my nightgown! I have a fine teacher who has all kinds of patience, and considerable music talent as well—not that this makes me a melodious linguist! I go to her house each morning, leave my shoes at the door, and there we make our bow of greeting to each other. Then she invites me into her home, where we sit on cushions on the matted floor with our feet under us (until mine give out). A low table between us is for my books and writing. The small pile of charcoal burning beside us in the huge earthen bowl becomes the central heating plant. The idioms go down, feet go under.

Townhall Series To Start February 15

The Alumni Association Forum Series, started last year, will get under way again on Thursday evening, February 15. The subject for the first forum discussion will be, "Should we scrap our present system of city government?" The forum will be organized on the plan of the now famous "Townhall" radio program. A panel of five well-known speakers is being arranged. Care is being taken to have the varied opinions on this subject represented on the panel. As in last year's forums the audience will be expected to take considerable part in the proceedings — asking questions of the panel speakers, and expressing their own views on the topic.

This year's forum program calls for a series of four meetings starting Thursday, February 15, and thereafter the third Thursday of each month except March 14.

This whole series of "Townhalls" will be broadcast through the courtesy of KMO, the Mutual station in Tacoma. As the program goes on the air at 8 p. m., the audience is urged to be in their seats by 7:45. Come and bring your friends.

The Faculty Ideal

Several years ago Dean Hershey prepared the following statement with respect to the teacher in the liberal arts college:

"The teacher in the liberal arts college should be an artist rather than a technician. The technician belongs to the trade and professional schools. This artist-teacher must know the tools he uses—his teaching subjects—and the rules and laws of such tools, but his role as artist-teacher should control the use of such tools. The creative urge in the work of the college teacher should always be manifest — he should be an Athenian rather than an Alexandrian. This creative urge should be in the direction of an improved social order and should find its expression in the stream of college graduates who go forth from his teaching and comradeship with an appreciation of the basic human values and interests. All of the institutions of human society should be the objective of the liberal arts college teacher and his teaching, and these should be conceived as the expression of that finest of all fine arts—the fine art of living together in bonds of peace and mutual good will. The college teacher, as a social artist, must be a dreamer and must bring to pass the things that do not now appear. His reward will be largely in dreams come true, and in his students whose principles and practices in human relations advance the ideals of the artist-teacher."

By PAUL LANTZ '40

Coach Lou Grant's 1940 hoop edition is green as grass and tough as rawhide. On paper we are doped to land near the bottom of the conference heap, but don't bet too heavily on it.

The scribes were politely sorrowful following our opening breather against Western Washington College of Education (30-58). Since then we have played four pre-season games, winning two hair-line decisions over the St. Martin Rangers, trouncing Reed and losing to the University of Washington all-star alumni, after holding them on even terms in the opening canto. We split our opening conference tilts with powerful Pacific university.

After considerable juggling and sleight-of-hand, Lou seemingly has pulled a winning combination out of the hat. Jimmy Paulson, a reserve center from last season, holds down a guard position and is the only letterman. Teaming with Paulson are four freshmen, Bert McLaughlin and Jim Van Camp, forwards, Norm Walker, center, and Harry Werbisky, guard. Walker, a Hoquiam product, is listed as a forward on last year's all-state high school lineup. Van Camp, from Kennewick, is a good shot and improving rapidly, while McLaughlin's long swishes have been the margin of victory on more than one occasion. One of the most aggressive players in the conference is Harry Werbisky. "Whiskey" looks heavy and languid but is deceptively fast and makes up in ability what he lacks in height. On the bench Lou has assembled a formidable array of reserve talent which often sees as much action as the starting quintet.

Baseball This Year

This Spring, CPS will reenter competition in baseball, according to Coach Frank. There was much loud protest, last year, when baseball was dropped in favor of skiing. In the past, we have had some outstanding teams, and this year we again have a good share of diamond talent. So "batter up!"

Intramural Sports

Under the able guidance of Manager Clair Hanson, intramural tournaments have been running along hot and fast. To open the season, Sigma Zeta Epsilon out-passed the pigskin pitchers of Delta Kappa Phi for top honors in touch football. This was followed by torrid volleyball competition in which Alpha Chi Nu barely nosed out powerful Zeta and Mu Chi teams, who tied for second place. Detal Kappa Phi came in for its share of the glory by defeating the Independents and Chi Nus to take the badminton crown. Hundreds of students saw Harry Werbisky defeat Phil Garland in the all-college ping pong finals on the stage of Jones hall auditorium. Bill Schroeder and Emery Watte, being the best of friends and intending to remain so, decided to share the blue ribbon in handball.

Intramural points have not officially been added but a glance into the crystal ball shows Sigma Zeta Epsilon leading with Delta Kappa Phi and Alpha Chi Nu close behind.

Next on the list is basketball. Competition is slated for February 6 and will continue each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon from 12 to 2 o'clock. The latch string is always out to alumni. This year, the teams will sport new uniforms.

Of special interest to alums is the men's Intramural Gym Jubilee to be held on the evening of February 9.

Alumns Take Part In Intramural Jubilee

Friday evening, February 9th, has been set as the date for the Men's Intramural Jubilee. The entertainment is being sponsored by the men's intramural department for both students and alumni.

Clair Hanson, men's intramural manager, is planning an interesting group of events which will include a basketball game between alumni stars and present fraternity and independent teams.

Other events on the program will be the college volley-ball championship game between the Alpha Chi Nu team and the faculty, exhibitions of badminton, and an open house in the recently completed "work-out room" where much new equipment will be displayed.

The program is open to the public, and no admission will be charged. All alumni and especially lettermen are urged to come out and take part.

SKI HEIL . . .

The first meet of the ski year for CPS is to be held in Canada with UBC on the first weekend in February. The squad will leave at noon or a little after on Feb. 1. The showing made by individuals in this meet will more or less determine the membership of the team. Tentative candidates who will probably go to Canada are Bill and Bob Taylor, Pete Dempsey, Gene Hall, Bud Barrett, Jack Coblentz, Ray Kulla, Doug Howe, Warren Westbo, Wilfred Woods, Bob Sprenger, Willard Bellman, Bob Martin and Don Rassmusen.

Feb. 11 the CPS club will take the Milwaukee trip to Hyak for club skiing. The rates have been lowered since last year and are now $1.50 round trip, trains leaving Tacoma at 7 a. m. and returning at 9:30 p. m. The more the merrier, we always say, so the club issues an invitation to each and every aspiring skier in the college and Alumni Association to join the party for lots of fun together.

Feb. 16 and 17, CPS team will compete in the Pacific Northwest Intercollegiate meet to be held at Hood.

Feb. 22 will again be CPS day at Paradise.

Finance . . .

Three months ago we pointed out the necessity for our alumni association to become self-supporting as rapidly as possible. Briefly stated, this is necessary in order that the college funds now being used annually for support of the alumni association may be freed for use in the many problems facing a rapidly growing college.

We enclosed in the last issue an envelope for your convenience in the matter of annual dues decided on by the Alumni Board of Directors. The Directors have decided on $3.00 as the standard amount, more or less being equally acceptable. The response to this first call was gratifying and a good start, but only a start.

We should like to call your attention to the accompanying tables on this page. One is a list of "Active Members"—alumni who are giving financial support either through their Alumni Loyalty Pledge or through the new annual dues arrangement. We should like to say before the end of the year that this list had become too long to print.

The other table is a carry-over from the Homecoming Alumnus and needs no explanation—only your assistance in increasing the left hand column. A blank for your convenience is printed on this page. Fill it in—send it in—become an Active Member.

ALUMNI BOARD CREATES NEW OFFICE

Under the new financial program adopted this fall, the Alumni Association handles its own funds and maintains its own bookkeeping system. To carry on this business properly the Board of Directors has created the office of auditor. The auditor is elected by the board and will serve permanently. His duties will be to check the books at regular intervals and to counter-sign all checks on the Association. Franklin Johnson was elected to fill this office, and has accepted the position. Mr. Johnson is an accountant and auditor by vocation and has been actively engaged in alumni work for several years.

POINT OF VIEW

Because of their size and prevalence, especially here in the West, the tax-supported state universities and colleges seem at times to o'er-shadow our whole educational picture. Especially is this true in the field of school finance. We of course realize that privately endowed institutions are not supported by taxes, from their very nature. Sometimes it is hard to classify in our thinking the fact that there is no mysterious tax money which aids privately endowed schools, such as the College of Puget Sound, or any miraculous spring from which flows a constant and growing income. We are prone to consider the requests of privately endowed institutions for financial support as rather unwarranted or as just another behest for a donation to another charity organization.

We all know that the privately endowed school depends on private income and on private gifts—these are indisputable facts. However, the point from which we view these facts should not be as we have described above. Rather, must we realize that the privately endowed school is the foundation of our higher educational system. It is a most vital and necessary part of the educational system in our type of government, representing as it does the balance wheel in our rapidly changing political, economic, and spiritual world. We must not think of the requests of these institutions for financial support as bothersome or as a necessary evil. On the other hand, we must realize that the very life blood of these schools is the support, benevolences and bequests of the people who have come to realize the importance of the privately endowed school and the source of its income.

Secretary Receives Nat'l Appointment

Richard D. Smith, alumni executive secretary, has recently received notice of his appointment as Director of District VIII of the American Alumni Council. The Council is an international organization which is made up of colleges and universities throughout the United States, Canada, and Newfoundland.

Because of the number of member associations and the great distances concerned, much of the work of the Council is carried on by its officers and ten directors representing ten geographical areas. District VIII is comprised of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Alberta, and British Columbia. The purpose of the American Alumni Council is to benefit its members by the interchange of alumnal and educational problems; by the study of practices and policies of organized alumni work; and by the appraisal of organized alumni achievement.

To be thus closely associated with an organization whose membership includes nearly three hundred of the finest colleges and universities of North America is a distinct honor to the Alumni Association, another mark of the growth and influence of the College of Puget Sound.

to the teaching profession as judged by professional attitudes, personal habits and temperament, interest and participation in extra-curricular activities, performance in aptitude tests, and practice teaching.

Music . . .

By E. T. SHORT

Gradually the music activities of the Tacoma area are centering at the College of Puget Sound. Registration in the Conservatory of Music has about reached the limit of the facilities. Addition of a five year course in public school music—comparable to the same course given at the University of Washington—under the direction of Louis G. Wersen, is partly responsible for the increase.

Consistent production over a period of years under the direction of John Paul Bennett, teacher of voice and head of the music department, had placed the conservatory in the front rank among Pacific coast music schools. Last year a stringed instrument division was established with Erich Koker as instructor. Band instrument instruction with Mr. Wersen directing the work increased the interest in the school. Addition of the school music course completed the well rounded curriculum.

Community activities promoted by Prof. Bennett three years ago are bearing fruit in choral work in several communities in the Tacoma area. This is notably true of Eatonville and Sumner. At the former place Prof. Bennett is cooperating with the public schools on a program for a music festival this spring. At Sumner church choirs have been organized into a choral union for the production of the Messiah at Easter.

In the city when music is desired for special occasions, the first appeal is to the college music department. Not all demands can be met, as even music students must spend some time in the class room. This service is provided largely by a quartet, double quartet and a string ensemble.

The conservatory string ensemble is composed of about 30 young musicians who are studying the string classics and some of the better modern compositions under the direction of Mr. Koker. In that, it also serves the purpose of developing material for a civic orchestra. The nucleus for this organization already has been established in a recreation orchestra under the direction of Mr. Wersen. Membership in this organization includes players outside the college.

The Puget Sound Singers, 100 voice college ensemble organized last September by Prof. Bennett, has increased music interest in the college generally. Membership is open to any college student or member of the faculty with the urge to sing. The only requirement is regular attendance at rehearsals.

Dramatics

By Bill Melton, '42

After the most successful Homecoming play in many seasons, "The Cat and the Canary," the Campus Playcrafters went to work on the well-known laugh machine, "Second Childhood." The freshman and sophomore classes were behind it, and the result was a packed house and the "standing room only" sign was out. The high schools of the city were invited to attend this three-act farce, as was the general public. Dorothy Padfield, student drama director this year at C. P. S., was at the helm, and originated a clever scheme of presentation for the play—that of having two casts. One cast performed in the first half of the play, and then, after a complete walk-out, the second started to work.

Not content with just two three-act plays for the first semester, Miss Martha Pearl Jones, head of the drama department, chose the well-known five-act religious drama, "The Servant in the House," by Charles Ran Kennedy, for the Christmas play. It was decided to present this play to several churches throughout the state of Washington. The dates have been arranged and the troop of seven—Dewane Lamka, Bill Melton, June Peele, Neil Richardson, Wilbur Baisinger, Anita Misener and Dick Sloat, is now traveling on Sunday nights. The cast, with all the necessary properties, make-up, a portable switchboard, lighting effects, and stage crew, have been to Everett and Raymond, and will go to Mt. Vernon and Kelso and other towns interested in presenting the group.

Another annual event is the presentation of several one-act plays at the Puyallup Masonic-Eastern Star Christmas banquet. This year three rousing ten-minute farces were presented—"J. Caesar," "Jerry Joins In," and "Common Clay." Those taking part in these productions were Dewane Lamka, Richard Jarvis, Bill Melton, Richard Sloat, Robert Sloat, Wilbur Baisinger, Willard Bellman, Charles Swanson, Neil Richardson, Winnie Richard, Tom Eshelman, Grace McLean, Doris Wittren, David Davies, Richard McKnight, Dorothy Padfield, Mary Ellen Peterson, Phil McElwain, Garth Dickens, Billie Dickson, and Dick Dews.

Next in line for C. P. S. Campus Playcrafters is Thornton Wilder's famous Pulitzer prize play, "Our Town." After getting a release on this three-act comedy, Martha Pearl Jones announced that it would be presented at C. P. S. as the annual spring play and would offer opportunity for some forty dramatists. This promises to be one of the most unusual productions yet tried at C. P. S.

The stage crew and technicians are Willard Bellman, Cyril and Clair Hanson, Matthew Sato, Julius Beck and Neil Richardson, who have made more than one scene come to life on the C. P. S. stage this fall.

Tacoma Art Assn.

The Tacoma Art Association continues its schedule of exhibitions in the college galleries on the fourth floor of Jones Hall. With the addition of the new studio gallery it is possible to present even more extensive exhibitions. Until the middle of February is an exhibition of three-dimensional fabrics designed by Jane Givan (Mrs. Bruce Johnston), instructor in the last summer school session, and made by her husband, Bruce Johnston. They present one of the most attractive and colorful shows to be seen for some time. They have been combined with a small group of sculpture by Ebba Rapp, one of the Northwest's leading young sculptors and teachers. She was one of four sculptors from Washington to exhibit at the New York Fair. One piece, "Pensive Mood," shown in the college, was exhibited at the fair last summer.

In keeping with the spirit of art education in the school and the community, another group of reproductions of famous paintings of the past have been placed in the large gallery. This exhibition is presented with the idea that it should illustrate how an understanding of the art of the old masters gives an understanding of the art of the masters of today. In the small gallery a collection of graphic arts have been brought together from local print collectors. One of the more important prints to be shown is James A. McNeil Whistler's famous etching, "Black Lion Wharf", loaned by Mr. George Swasey. Two Tacoma print-makers, Thomas Handforth and Cecil Bell, are well represented.

Plans for the future season include a lecture on Sunday afternoon, January 28, at 4 p. m. in the studio gallery, on Illuminating and Heraldry, by Theodora Lawrenson Harrison, authority on this subject, who has been commissioned by European royalty to do heraldic designs.

It is planned to have a study group on American Art to meet Thursdays at 2 p. m. in the studio gallery. Anyone wishing further information may call Mrs. D. D. Schneider at PR 2200. Any special groups that wish to have gallery talks presented may make arrangements to meet in the gallery by calling Professor Kohler.

An exhibition illustrating various types of print making, circulated by the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D. C., will make up a part of the February exhibition.

During March paintings by B. J. D. Nordfeldt will be featured. In April a local jury exhibition is being planned, which will include oils and water colors entered by Tacoma and Southwest Washington artists. This is the first attempt at a competition show and is in keeping with the plans of the college and the Art Association to further interest and to develop art in the community.

In May the Museum of Modern Art is sending an exhibition of modern architecture, which is being jointly sponsored by the College of Puget Sound and the Art Association.

In connection with an American Alumni Council regional conference in Oakland, a reunion of C. P. S. alumni residing in the Bay region was held on the campus of the Pacific School of Religion, Sunday, the 17th of December. Attending the reunion were Dr. E. A. Schaper, '17; Esther P. Haggarty, '39; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Roen (Shirley Morris), ex '32, and their young daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Miles Post, '38 (Frances Spencer, '35), and J. Bernard Watson, '39. Other alumni reunions are being held this month in Washington, D. C., and New York City, where President Todd is visiting

MUSIC . . .

Richard D. Smith, field secretary, has just returned from a trip through the Northwest booking the annual tour of the Adelpian Choral society, official singing group of the college. Prof. Bennett, under whose direction the chorus has become the ranking college singing group in the Northwest, has added several new features to the program this year, including selections from the operas. The tour will start the last week in March and the chorus will be back on the campus by April 15.

For the first time in the history of the organization the annual convention of the Washington State Federation of Music clubs will be held in Tacoma with part of the sessions on the college campus. The convention was brought here through the invitation of the Adelpian Choral society. Prof. Bennett has been appointed a member of the state program committee and will have charge of the chorus program of the convention. The tentative dates are April 17 to 20. The meeting will bring music people from all over the state to the college campus.

With other departments of the fine arts division the conservatory is benefiting this year from a share of a $35,000 grant to the college by the Carnegie corporation of New York. The money is being used for fine arts production and to broaden the field of the music and art departments in community service.
